From Tuesday May 29, to Saturday June 2, 1770.

St. James's, May 30.

THIS Day the Right Honorable the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Commons, of the City of London, in Common-Council aſſembled, waited on His Majeſty; and being introduced to His Majeſty by the Right Honorable the Earl of Hertford, Lord Chamberlain of His Majeſty's Houſehold, James Eyre, Eſq; the Recorder, made their Compliments in the following Addreſs.

To the King's moſt Excellent Majeſty,

The humble Addreſs of the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Commons, of the City of London, in Common-Council aſſembled.

Moſt Gracious Sovereign,

WE wait upon your Majeſty with our ſincere Congratulations on the happy Delivery of our moſt Gracious Queen, and on the Birth of another Princeſs: And to aſſure your Majeſty, that there are not, in all your Dominions, any Subjects more faithful, more dutiful, and more affectionate to your Majeſty's Perſon and Family; or more ready to ſacrifice their Lives and Fortunes in the Maintenance of the true Honor and Dignity of your Crown.

Long may your Majeſty reign the true Guardian of the Liberties of this free Country; and be the Inſtrument, in the Hands of Providence, of tranſmitting to our Poſterity thoſe invaluable Rights and Privileges, which are the Birth-right of the Subjects of this Kingdom.

Signed by Order of Court,
James Hodges.

To which Addreſs His Majeſty was pleaſed to return the following moſt gracious Anſwer.

I Receive, with great Satisfaction, your Congratulations on the happy Delivery of the Queen, and the Birth of a Princeſs; And I return you my hearty Thanks for the Duty and Affection to My Perſon, and Family, and the Zeal for the true Honor and Dignity of My Crown, which you expreſs upon this Occaſion.

The City of London, entertaining theſe loyal Sentiments, may be always aſſured of My Protection.

They were all graciouſly received, and had the Honor to kiſs His Majeſty's Hand.

Straſbourg, May 11. The Dauphineſs arrived here on the 9th Inſtant, about Noon, at the Houſe built on Purpoſe for her Reception, on one of the Iſlands of the Rhine, by the Magiſtrates of the Town, purſuant to the King's Orders, and furniſhed from his Majeſty's Wardrobe.

Her Royal Highneſs, attended by all her Auſtrian Court, alighted at the Part of the Building deſtined for them; and, after dreſſing, went to the Hall appointed for the Ceremonial of her Reception. The Count de Noailles, his Majeſty's Ambaſſador Extraordinary for the Reception of the Dauphineſs, attended, accompanied by the Sieur Bouret, Secretary of the King's Cabinet, and the Sieur Gerard, Firſt Commiſſioner in the Department of Foreign Affairs, the Commiſſaries appointed by the King to aſſiſt at this Ceremony. The Full Powers being read, and the Acts of Delivery and Reception of the Dauphineſs ſigned by the reſpective Commiſſaries, one Side of the Room was opened, and diſcovered the Perſons appointed by his Majeſty to form her Royal Highneſs's Court.

Then her Auſtrian Court were admitted to kiſs her Hand, and afterwards retired.

When the Perſons of her new Court had been ſeparately preſented to her Royal Highneſs by the Count and Counteſs de Noailles, the Dauphineſs ſet out, with the King's Coaches, for the City, and was ſaluted in the Plain, by the Troops drawn out for that Purpoſe, having the Marquiſs de Vogué at their Head. Her Entry into the City was proclaimed by a triple Diſcharge of the Cannon on the Ramparts, and by the Ringing of the Bells of all the Churches. The Marſhal de Contades, at the Head of the Field Officers of the Garriſon, had the Honour to ſalute the Dauphineſs at the Gate of the City; and the Magiſtrates had afterwards the Honour of complimenting her Royal Highneſs at the Entrance into the City, where a Triumphal Arch was erected.

The Dauphineſs proceeded through the City, amidſt the Regiments of Infantry of the Garriſon which lined the Streets: As ſhe paſſed by the Town-Houſe, Fountains of Wine were playing, which was given by the Magiſtrates to the Populace: She alighted at the Biſhop's Palace, where Cardinal de Rohan, at the Head of the Comtes of the Cathedral, had the Honour to compliment her Royal Highneſs.

After Dining in State, the Dauphineſs permitted the Magiſtrates to preſent her the City Wine; this Ceremony ended with a Feaſt of Bacchus, performed by the Coopers, who diverted her Royal Highneſs by dancing with their Hoops. She afterwards went to the French Comedy, amidſt the Acclamations of the People.

On her Return from the Comedy, all the Streets were illuminated by the Vigilance of the Magiſtrates; and the Play-Houſe, and the Promenade de Broglie, which is over-againſt it, were, in like manner, illuminated; as alſo a Decoration of a very great Extent, which was erected by the Magiſtrates oppoſite the Biſhop's Palace, and which repreſented a vaſt Colonnade, through the Arches of which were to be ſeen Gardens in Perſpective: This Decoration, which in the Day-time made a Deception to the Eye, produced as great an Effect at Night, by the the Diſpoſition of the Lamps which enlightened it. It was placed on the Quay, and was ſeparated from the Biſhop's Palace by the River Ill, which runs by the Terrace-Wall of the Palace: It communicated with the Terrace by a Parterre contrived on Boats, which was placed there whilſt the Dauphineſs was at the Comedy.

The Moment the Dauphineſs roſe from Supper, Fire was ſet to the Shrubs which compoſed the Parterre on the Boats: Theſe Shrubs were formed of Lamps of different coloured Fire. On the Top of the Decoration were exhibited, in an artificial Manner, the Cyphers of the Dauphin and Dauphineſs; and on the Parterre was an artificial Fountain of Fire, in the Middle of ſeveral Jets d'Eau, which made a very agreeable Contraſt. About Midnight the Dauphineſs went to the Playhouſe, where the Marſhal de Contades gave a Ball, to which not only the moſt conſiderable Perſons of the Town, Strangers of Note, and the Officers of the Garriſon, but alſo ſeveral of the Burghers and their Wives, dreſſed in the old Country-Dreſs, and ornamented with Ribbands of the Colour of the Dauphineſs's Liveries, were admitted.

The 8th, The Perſons of Note, who had been preſented to the Dauphineſs, were admitted to her Court. She received alſo the Deputations of the Canton and Biſhoprick of Baſle, of the Village of Mulhauſen, of the Superior Council of Alſace, of the Body of Nobility, and of the Lutheran and Catholick Univerſities. She went afterwards to the Cathedral, at the Door of which Prince Louis de Rohan, Coadjutor, in his Pontifical Habit, attended by the Comtes of the Cathedral, and all the Clergy, waited to receive her.

After Maſs, which was accompanied with Muſick, the Dauphineſs dined in Publick at the Biſhop's Palace, from whence ſhe ſet out, at Four o'Clock, for Saverne, attended by all her Court, and by the Marſhal de Contades, the Marquis de Vogué, and the Sieur Blair. Cardinal Rohan ſet out in the Morning to receive the Dauphineſs at Saverne. Her Royal Highneſs, after a Firework was played off, which had been prepared by the Cardinal, ſupped with the Ladies of her Houſehold, and Thoſe who had accompanied her to France.

Nancy, May 12. The Dauphineſs arrived here on the 9th. She was received at St. Nicholas Gate by the Field Officers, Marquis de Choiſeul-la-Baume at their Head. This Gate was magnificently illuminated. The Dauphineſs alighted at the Hotel du Gouvernement, which was alſo illuminated. The next Morning the Supreme Court, the Chamber of Accompts, the Corporation, and the Univerſity, paid their Compliments to the Dauphineſs, who dined in Publick: After which ſhe viſited the Cordeliers, where is the Burying-place of her Anceſtors, and ſet out for Bar. The Corps of Grenadiers de France lined the Street at her Arrival and Departure; and the Regiments of Schomberg, Dragoons, Orleans and Chartres, Cavalry, lined the Road. At Luneville ſhe received the Military Honours from the Gendarmerie, commanded by the Marquis de Caſtries, and the Marquis d'Autichamps.

Chalons, May 12. Yeſterday, the Day on which the Dauphineſs arrived here, the Sieur Rouillé d'Orfeuil, Intendant of the Province, went on the other Side of Saint-Dizier on the Borders of Champagne, where he had the Honour to receive her Royal Highneſs. Two Squadrons of the Royal Regiment, Dragoons, were ſtationed on the Road; and at a ſmall Diſtance from Chalons, a Detachment of the King's Body-Guards. On her Arrival the Dauphineſs received the Homages of the different Companies, and of Six Girls, to whom the Town gives Marriage-Portions. In the Evening ſhe went to the Comedy.

Her Royal Highneſs's Supper was preceded by a magnificent Fire-work, which was played off at the Sound of Martial Muſick; and, as ſoon as ſhe roſe from Table, there was a ſuperb Illumination, repreſenting the Temple of Hymen. All the Quarters of the Town were illuminated, particularly the New Gate lately built on the Deſigns of the greateſt Maſters. The Populace, amonſt whom was diſtributed Wine and Proviſion in Abundance, partook of the general Joy, which they teſtified by repeated Acclamations.

The next Day the Dauphineſs proceeded on her Journey through Rheims.

Verſailles, May 19. The King, being informed of the Approach of the Dauphineſs, ſet out from hence on the 13th, about Noon, with the Dauphin, Madame Adelaide, and Meſdames Victoire and Sophie, for Compiegne, where he received the News in the Evening of the Dauphineſs's Arrival at Soiſſons. The next Day his Majeſty, attended by the Dauphin, Meſdames, and the Principal Officers of the Court, went to meet the Dauphineſs as far as the Bridge of Berne, in the Foreſt of Compiegne. The Detachments of the Houſehold Troops, and the Vol du Cabinet, preceded and followed his Majeſty's Coach in the uſual Order. As ſoon as the Dauphineſs perceived the King, ſhe alighted from her Coach, and went to meet his Majeſty, ſupported by the Comte de Saulx-Tavannes, her Chevalier d'Honneur, and the Comte de Teſſé, her firſt Ecuyer, and attended by the Comteſſe de Noailles, her Dame d'Honneur, the Marquiſe de Duras, the Dutcheſs de Pecquigny, the Marquiſe de Tavannes, the Marquiſe de Mailly, and by all the Perſons whom the King had appointed to receive her on the Frontier: The Princeſs, when ſhe approached the King, who had alighted from his Coach, threw herſelf at his Feet. His Majeſty raiſed her up, and embracing her with great Tenderneſs, preſented her to the Dauphin, who embraced her alſo. After this Interview the King ſtepped into his Coach, to return to Compiegne, taking with him the Dauphin and Dauphineſs. On their Arrival at the Palace, the Dauphineſs was conducted to the Apartment prepared for her. His Majeſty and the Dauphin walked on each Side of her to her Apartment, where the Duke of Orleans, the Duke and Dutcheſs of Chartres, the Prince of Condé, the Duke and Dutcheſs of Bourbon, the Prince of Conty, the Comte and Comteſſe de la Marche, the Duke of Penthievre, and the Princeſs de Lamballe, were preſented by his Majeſty to the Dauphineſs.

After the King retired, the Gentlemen who attended his Majeſty to Compiegne were preſented to the Dauphineſs, and had the Honour to ſalute her. His Majeſty afterwards ſupped in Publick with the Dauphin, the Dauphineſs, Meſdames, and the Princes and Princeſſes who were at Compiegne. The next Day the King, attended by the Dauphin, the Dauphineſs, and Meſdames, ſet out from Compiegne for the Chateau de la Muette, where his Majeſty ordered the magnificent Set of Diamonds, which had been prepared for her, to be preſented to the Dauphineſs. After Supper his Majeſty and the Dauphin returned to this Place. The Dauphineſs did not arrive here till the next Morning about Ten o'Clock. The King went immediately to her Apartment, and ſtayed there ſome Time. About One o'Clock in the Afternoon the Dauphineſs went to the King's Apartment, from whence they proceeded to the Chapel in the following Order: The Grand-Maitre, the Maſter and Aſſiſtant of the Ceremonies, walked before the Dauphin, who handed the Dauphineſs; the King, preceded by the Comte de Provence, the Comte d'Artois, and the Princes of the Blood, and followed by Madame, Meſdames, and the Princeſſes of the Blood, the Great Officers and Ladies of the Court. The King being in his Pew, the Comte de Provence, the Comte d'Artois, Madame and Meſdames, as alſo the Princes and Princeſſes of the Blood, ranged themſelves on each Side as uſual: The Dauphin and Dauphineſs kneeled on the Steps of the Altar: The Archbiſhop of Rheims, Great Almoner, who came out of the Veſtry the Moment the King entered the Chapel, preſented his Majeſty with the Holy Water, and afterwards went up to the Altar, which the King and his Attendants approached. This Prelate, after addreſſing the Dauphin and Dauphineſs, began the Ceremony by the Benediction of Thirteen Pieces of Gold, and of a Gold Ring, which he preſented to the Dauphin, who put the Ring on the Fourth Finger of the Left Hand of the Dauphineſs, and gave her the Thirteen Pieces of Gold. The Marriage-Ceremony being finiſhed, and the Dauphin and Dauphineſs having received the Nuptial Benediction, the King returned to his Pew, and the Great Almoner began Maſs; during which the King's Muſick performed an Anthem compoſed by Abbé Gauzargues, Maſter of Muſick to his Majeſty. After the Offertory, the Dauphin and Dauphineſs went to the Offering, and at the End of the Pater, a Canopy of Silver Brocade was ſpread over their Heads; the Biſhop of Senlis, Firſt Almoner of the King, ſupported the Canopy on the Side of the Dauphin, and the Biſhop of Chartres, Firſt Almoner of the Dauphineſs, on her Royal Highneſs's Side; which was not removed till the Great Almoner had finiſhed the Prayers. When the Maſs was ended, the Great Almoner approached the King's Pew, and preſented to his Majeſty the Regiſters of the Marriages of the Royal Pariſh, which the Curate, who aſſiſted at the Ceremony of the Marriage, had brought with him. The King, attended by the Dauphin and Dauphineſs, and the Royal Family, the Princes and Princeſſes of the Blood, and the Lords and Ladies of the Court, was reconducted to his Apartment in the ſame Order which had been obſerved in going to the Chapel.

As ſoon as the Dauphineſs was in her own Apartment, the Duke d'Aumont, Firſt Lord of the Bedchamber in Waiting, ordered a Caſket of Jewels to be preſented to her Royal Highneſs from the King. The Ambaſſadors and Foreign Miniſters had the Honour of being preſented to the Dauphineſs by the Counteſs de Noailles. The Lords and Ladies of the Court, who were not at Compiegne on the Arrival of the Dauphineſs, had the ſame Honour the Day after the Marriage.

About Six in the Evening, the King, attended by the Royal Family, the Princes and Princeſſes of the Blood, and the Lords and Ladies of the Court, went into the Great Gallery, where there was a Drawing Room, when his Majeſty played at Cards; and afterwards ſupped in Publick, with the Dauphin and Dauphineſs, the Comte de Provence, the Comte d'Artois, Madame, Madame Adelaide, Meſdames Victoire and Sophie, and the Duke of Orleans, the Duke and Dutcheſs of Chartres, the Prince of Condé, the Duke and Dutcheſs of Bourbon, the Princeſs of Conty, the Prince of Conty, the Count and Counteſs de la Marche, the Duke of Penthievre, and the Princeſs de Lamballe. During the Entertainment, different Pieces of Muſic were performed, under the Conduct of the Sieur Rebel, Knight of the King's Order, and Superintendant of his Majeſty's Band. After Supper, the King, having conducted the Dauphin and Dauphineſs to their Apartment, and the Benediction of the Bed having been made by the Archbiſhop of Rheims, Great Almoner, the King delivered the Shirt to the Dauphin, and the Dutcheſs of Chartres performed the ſame Office to the Dauphineſs.

The next Day the King and Royal Family went, about Six in the Evening, to the Hall newly built for Plays, where the Opera of Perſeus was repreſented. His Majeſty afterwards ſupped in Publick.

Aranjuez, May 10. The Ventura, a Spaniſh Veſſel from Lima, which was inſured for a very large Sum, and which it was feared was loſt, arrived at Cadiz the 3d of this Month.

The Weather hitherto has been as unfavorable as in Winter, a continued Series of Wet and Cold, and no one as yet ventures to leave off Fires.

Turin, May 19 We have had violent Rains here this Week, which prevented the King of Sardinia's removing to the Veneria. The Weather is now fine; and it is thought that his Sardinian Majeſty and the whole Court will go thither the Beginning of next Week, for a Month.
